Foreword

This volume contains two-part settings (high/low voices) of the music of the Liturgy of the Presanctified Gifts. The melodies are those of Serbian chant with side by side settings of each hymn in both English and Church Slavonic. The primary sources for the Church Slavonic settings include both the Opste Pojanje and Osmoglasnik of Stevan Mokranjac, and the Triod of Branko Cvejich.

The hymns that pertain to Vespers and the Divine Liturgy are the same as those found in the bilingual volumes for Great Vespers and the Divine Liturgy published on my website. This volume does however include additional settings for the litanies and a few other liturgical hymns, featuring the lenten melodies found in Mokranjac's Opste Pojanje, allowing singers a broader choice. The Kosta Manojlovich litanies, although more challenging than the plain litanies, are particularly beautiful in their gentle but sweeping musical arch.

The chant settings published in the Triod of Branko Cvejich are used for all the Church Slavonic lenten prokeimena. The primary source for the remaining hymns specific to the Liturgy of the Presanctified Gifts are those found in Mokranjac's Opste Pojanje. The English adaptations of these prokeimena and hymns are taken from the Resanovic Anthology of Serbian Chant vol 2. This would include the lenten prokeimena, "Let My Prayer Arise," "Now the Powers of Heaven," "O Taste and See," and several other shorter hymns sung at the Communion.

As regards the two-part settings; the style of the accompanying lower voice is simplified and is largely that of an ison which modulates according to the dictates of the chant and which features frequent cadential elaborations. It is more suited to a Bass-Baritone voice but could also be sung by an Alto. The upper voice — the chant — can be sung by either a Tenor, Baritone, Mezzo Soprano or a Soprano. Although most of the chants are notated in the key of F major/minor, they can be freely transposed to a suitable register for the singers.

Depending on the parish, there may be different practices as to when the transferring of the Presanctified Holy Gifts to the table of Oblation takes place. For this reason, instructions in the form of boxed text have been provided on pages 4 and 5 of the music.

If the priest transfers the Presanctified Gifts to the table of Oblation immediately after the singing of the "Lord, I Call" verse, the chanter sings "Set a watch..." and "Incline not my heart" (pg. 80 or 81) slowly during the transfer while the congregation kneels. After which, the chanter resumes with "Let my prayer arise" along with the remaining stichera for "Lord I Call." In some parishes the transfer of the Gifts takes place during the reading of the third set of psalms (kathisma), in which case no singing is required.
